Stem cell transplants are designed to replace the patient's unhealthy cells with healthy ones. The most common sources of these healthy cells are the umbilical cord blood and bone marrow. stem cell timeline